DEAR READER,

Spring 2026 is approaching fast, and we are excited to see this year's new products arriving in our retailers' stores. As is common across the grilling world, Mustang has made a strong investment in electric grills. The new Dayton and Franklin electric grills make grilling easier and more accessible for everyone.

Previously, electric grills were controlled by adjusting power levels, but now the grilling temperature itself is set directly. In our new models, the grilling surface reaches temperatures of up to 300°C, which is more than enough to quickly cook even the thickest steaks, vegetables, and other grill favorites. With these innovations, electric grills now deliver the same grilling results as gas or charcoal grills.

Griddle grilling continues its rise in popularity, and Mustang is expanding its selection in this category. The new Mustang Griddle 4 griddle grill introduces a unique ceramic coating to the griddle surface. This coating reduces food sticking and makes cleaning significantly easier. Powerful U-shaped burners ensure even heat distribution across the entire griddle.

Among food trends, smash burgers are gaining huge popularity. Mustang is launching its own smash burger grilling accessory set, making it easy to prepare these delicious burgers at home. In addition, we are introducing griddle plates for gas grills, allowing a standard gas grill to be transformed into a griddle grill.

The use of plant-based proteins in cooking has increased dramatically. For many, this choice is driven by ideology, but there are also clear health benefits to using plant-based proteins. We explore this trend in a dedicated article. Plant-based proteins are an excellent choice not only for vegetarians, but also for omnivores.

Fireplaces are an important heat source for many detached homes during autumn and winter. Fireplace manufacturing and quality are strictly regulated, and the new fireplace standard EN16510-1:2022 has come into force by the time you read this. Mustang's range includes impressive lightweight fireplaces, all manufactured in full compliance with this updated standard.

We wish you a delicious and enjoyable grilling spring and summer 2026!

Sami Sinisalo
Brand Manager

P.S. As you read this, Mustang's showroom is undergoing a complete renovation. We are renewing the entire exhibition space in preparation for the Spring/Summer 2027 pre-sales season. That year, Mustang will celebrate its 20th anniversary.

ELECTRIC GRILLS

– AN ALTERNATIVE TO A GAS GRILL

Electric grills have developed tremendously in recent years. They are no longer just small tabletop grills suitable for balconies; many models now feature a gas-grill-style appearance, striking design, a large grilling surface, and powerful performance that allows you to grill all kinds of foods – from steaks to vegetables.

Heat output and performance

Modern electric grills can reach cooking surface temperatures of up to 300 °C, which is more than sufficient for searing steaks and achieving a crispy surface. By comparison, the cooking surface temperature of gas grills is typically around 330–360 °C, while the lid thermometer usually reads 200–250 °C.

The power of a gas grill combined with the ease of an electric grill.

Design and construction

The new Mustang electric grills are designed to resemble gas grills. They feature:

- ✓ The grill mounted on a wheeled cart
- ✓ Cooking grates made of matte-enameled cast iron
- ✓ Fold-down side shelves
- ✓ The desired cooking surface temperature set using control knobs
- ✓ A digital temperature display or a thermometer integrated into the lid

Who is an electric grill suitable for?

- ✓ Urban residents who are not permitted to use gas or open flames
- ✓ Users who value ease of use and quick cleaning
- ✓ Those who want the look of a gas grill but the convenience of an electric grill

PLANT PROTEIN ON THE RISE – FLAVOR, VALUES, AND HEALTH

The heat of the grill, the aroma of smoke, and the atmosphere of togetherness are all part of summer. Traditionally, steaks and sausages have been placed on the grill, but in recent years plant-based proteins have found their way onto more and more plates. Behind this shift are both ethical and health-related reasons – and many are pleasantly surprised by just how well plant-based options lend themselves to grilling.

The grill knows no limits – there’s room for meat, vegetables, and plant-based proteins alike, according to everyone’s preferences.

Ideology by the grill

For many, choosing plant-based protein is a conscious value-based decision. The environmental impacts of meat production are widely discussed: emissions, water consumption, and land use are significant factors. By placing tofu, pulled oats, or a plant-based sausage on the grill, one can also reduce their own carbon footprint.

The ethical dimension is also linked to animal welfare. Plant-based protein makes it possible to offer a shared grilling experience for everyone – from vegans to omnivores – without compromises. Barbecues don’t have to be the exclusive domain of meat eaters.

Well-being, the lighter way

From a health perspective, plant-based proteins offer several appealing benefits. They often contain less saturated fat and cholesterol than meat, while providing more fiber, vitamins, and minerals. A grilled plant-based patty or marinated tempeh can be filling, yet leave you feeling lighter than a traditional serving of sausages.

Studies show that when used in a varied diet, plant-based proteins can provide all the amino acids the body needs. For this reason, they are also well suited for physically active people and those who pay close attention to their protein intake.

Flavor is what matters

Grilling plant-based proteins largely comes down to seasoning and cooking technique. Tofu comes alive with a good marinade and a crispy surface, pulled fava beans and pulled oats work well on skewers, and today’s refrigerated sections offer a wide range of plant-based patties and sausages designed specifically for grilling. Vegetables such as bell peppers, zucchini, and corn round out the plate into a colorful and flavorful whole.

The grill brings people together

Using plant-based protein in grilled food is not just a trend, but a way to combine flavor, values, and well-being. It makes it possible to enjoy summer moments with friends and family so that everyone can find their own favorite by the grill. The grill knows no limits – there’s room for meat, vegetables, and plant-based proteins alike, according to everyone’s choices.

Burger with Quinoa–Black Bean Patty

Patties
2 dl quinoa
250 g cooked black beans
2 eggs
2 dl kale
2 cloves single-bulb garlic
2 dl chopped herbs (basil, parsley, thyme)
1 dl walnuts
3 tbsp potato starch
Season to taste: salt, black pepper, cayenne pepper, smoked paprika, and cumin

Cook the quinoa according to the package instructions and let it cool. Combine all the other ingredients in a bowl and blend with a food processor. You can leave the mixture slightly coarse if you prefer. Finally, mix the quinoa into the mixture and place it in the refrigerator for a while to let the flavors develop.

Shaping the patties is easy with a burger press. Fry the vegetable patties in plenty of oil in a cast iron pan to make them crispy and flavorful. Fry for about 2–3 minutes per side.

Toast the burger buns and prepare the remaining toppings, such as cheese, tomato, lettuce, pickles, halloumi, and mayonnaise.

GRIDDLE GRILLING TAKES OVER

A powerful and versatile gas griddle grill is an easy choice even for demanding use. When the entire cooking surface is a griddle, even the smallest foods won't fall onto the burners.

Top-tier performance

Mustang Griddle 4 is a 36-inch gas griddle grill that delivers top-tier performance and practicality for both home gardens and professional grilling. Its four powerful U-shaped burners produce a total output of 16.4 kW, ensuring even and efficient heat across the entire cooking surface.

High-quality cooking surface and griddle plate

The cooking surface measures an impressive 90.5 × 50 cm and features a carbon steel griddle plate with a ceramic coating. This combination ensures excellent heat conductivity and easy cleaning — perfect for preparing meats, vegetables, and seafood alike.

Durable construction and practical details

The grill's frame, cart, cabinet doors, and side shelves are made of powder-coated steel, providing a durable and weather-resistant structure.

Easily grill smash burgers, paella, hash, seafood, or other small delicacies.

653216 Mustang Gas grill Griddle 4

The fold-down side shelves save space during storage, while the cabinet and hanging hooks offer convenient storage for accessories. The gas bottle can be stored inside the cabinet, even while the grill is in use.

Ease of use and safety

The grill features a pull-out grease cup with a replaceable aluminum tray, making cleaning quick and effortless. Ignition is integrated into the control knobs, and each burner has its own ignition, improving safety and control during use. Four lockable castor wheels make the grill easy to move while ensuring stability when in place.

Accessories and warranty

The grill is compatible with the protective cover model number 602301, which shields the unit from the elements and helps extend its service life. Mustang Griddle 4 comes with a five-year warranty, reflecting its quality and durability.

SMASH BURGER – A CRISPY REVOLUTION

The smash burger has risen in recent years to become the brightest star of the burger world. Its secret lies in a simple yet ingenious cooking technique: the ground beef patty is pressed against a hot cooking surface, creating a crispy, caramelized crust.

Fast and intense patty

Around the world, the smash burger has become a trend largely thanks to social media food videos. Its quick preparation, intense flavor, and visually appealing seared surface make it a perfect choice for both home cooks and restaurants.

How is a smash burger made?

The preparation of a smash burger begins with high-quality, fatty ground beef (17–20% fat). The meat is lightly rolled into balls without compacting them too much. The patties are cooked on a very hot griddle. A dedicated burger press is used to smash the patties. If desired, parchment paper can be placed between the patty and the press to prevent sticking.

Roll into a ball, smash with a press, enjoy the caramelized crispiness in good company.

The patty is cooked for just under a minute, then flipped and topped with a slice of cheese. Once the patty is done, it is placed between a brioche or potato bun. You can add mayonnaise, lettuce, onion, or pickles if you like—or even stack multiple patties with cheese. Simple, but delicious.

The best gas grills for making smash burgers

Smash burgers are best cooked on a gas griddle grill or on a gas grill equipped with a separate griddle plate. Griddle grills are especially popular among smash burger enthusiasts.

PORTABLE INDUCTION COOKTOPS

Portable induction cooktops have rapidly become more common in home kitchens, cottages, and small apartments. They offer an efficient and safe way to prepare food without permanent installation.

How does an induction cooktop work?

An induction cooktop uses an electromagnetic field to heat the bottom of the cookware directly. This means the cooktop surface itself does not heat up significantly, making it safe and energy-efficient. When the cookware is removed or the cooktop is turned off, the heat stops immediately.

Advantages and disadvantages of an induction cooktop

- ✓ Fast and precise heating
- ✓ Safe – does not heat up without cookware
- ✓ Portable and compact
- ✓ Easy to clean
- ✓ Only induction-compatible cookware works
- ✓ May hum or make ticking sounds during use (normal)

Use cases

- ✓ Small kitchens and student apartments
- ✓ Cottages and motorhomes
- ✓ Extra cooktop for a busy home kitchen
- ✓ Catering and event use

Mustang induction cooktop

The cooktop offers a maximum power output of 2000 W, ensuring fast and efficient cooking. Users can choose from 20 different power levels, making it easy to adjust the heat precisely as needed—whether for gentle simmering or quickly boiling water.

Touch controls make the appliance intuitive and effortless to use. In addition, the cooktop features a timer function that allows precise control over cooking time. Automatic power shut-off enhances safety: the unit switches itself off if no cookware is detected or if the pot is empty. This feature reduces the risk of fire and helps save energy.

The cooktop also includes a child lock to prevent accidental operation, making it safe for families with children. Mustang's induction cooktop combines efficiency, safety, and ease of use. The product comes with a two-year warranty, providing extra peace of mind for the user.

STOVE FAN – POWERFUL HEAT WITHOUT ELECTRICITY

A simple and energy-efficient way to distribute the heat of a fireplace evenly throughout the room. Starts automatically from the heat and operates entirely without electricity.

In recent years, energy efficiency and comfort have become central to home heating solutions. One particularly popular innovation is Mustang's stove fan designed to be attached to the fireplace door, offering an efficient and environmentally friendly way to distribute heat evenly throughout the room.

How does it work?

Mustang's stove fan is mounted directly onto the firebox door of a fireplace or stove. Installation requires no tools, making setup effortless. When the firebox temperature reaches around 60 °C, the fan starts automatically and begins rotating using heat energy — without electricity or batteries.

Efficient air circulation

The fan's airflow is approximately 1.7–1.9 m/s, which is sufficient to circulate warm air efficiently throughout the room. This improves heat distribution and can even help reduce heating costs, as warmth is not concentrated only near the fireplace.

Environmentally friendly and maintenance-free

Because the device uses only heat as its energy source, it consumes no electricity and requires no complex maintenance. This makes it an excellent choice for both cottages and detached homes — especially in locations where electricity is not available or where its use is kept to a minimum.

LIGHTWEIGHT FIREPLACE – ATMOSPHERE AND WARMTH

A lightweight fireplace brings cozy atmosphere and welcome warmth to both homes and holiday residences. Thanks to its light structure, it is easy to install even in spaces where a traditional fireplace is not suitable. A lightweight fireplace provides fast heat, modern design, and the lively ambiance of fire — without the need for major renovation.

Fast heat with stylish design

Lightweight fireplaces are becoming increasingly popular solutions for homes and holiday residences where warmth, atmosphere, and easy installation are all desired. They offer an alternative to traditional, heavy heat-storing fireplaces. Lightweight fireplaces are typically metal-framed or otherwise light-structure units that do not contain heavy heat-retaining materials such as brick or soapstone.

A lightweight fireplace is an excellent choice when the goal is to combine aesthetics, fast heat output, and easy installation. However, it does not replace a heat-storing fireplace for long-term heating. When chosen and used correctly, a lightweight fireplace can still provide just the right amount of warmth and ambiance.

Benefits

- ✓ Easy installation: A lightweight fireplace does not require a massive foundation, so it can also be installed on floors that cannot support heavy structures.
- ✓ Fast heat: A lightweight fireplace heats up quickly and begins radiating warmth almost immediately after lighting.
- ✓ Versatility: Available in many styles and sizes—from modern to classic—making them suitable for both detached homes and cottages.
- ✓ Affordability: Lightweight fireplaces are often more affordable than heat-storing models, both in terms of purchase price and installation costs.

Limitations – no heat storage

Due to their lightweight construction, these fireplaces do not store heat for long. Once the fire goes out, heat output also stops quickly. This makes them less effective as a primary heat source, especially during the cold winter months.

A new standard came into force in November 2025

All new Mustang lightweight fireplaces are manufactured in accordance with the new EN 16510-1:2022 standard. This new standard takes into account stricter emission limits as well as higher energy efficiency requirements. In addition, it requires significantly more detailed technical documentation. The testing methods for obtaining CE marking have also become more stringent, requiring substantially more tests to determine the energy efficiency classes of fireplaces.

Old name, but a new product number

Mustang prefabricated fireplaces Granite, Virgo, Slim, and Basement remain in the range with new product numbers. The new product numbers indicate that they are manufactured in accordance with the new EN 16510-1:2022 standard.
